- There are 2 types of Dnepr drum wheels the M-72 and the cast hub. There are 4 types of Ural wheels the M-72, the early cast hub (similar to the Dnepr cast hub), the beer bottle wheel and the later cast hub. They are all interchangeable with attention to brake shoes. Later Ural brake shoes are wider than Dnepr or early Ural.
- All engines are interchangeable as complete units. OHV Dnepr flywheels have a different taper to SV bikes and Urals. Clutch plates interchange. Gearboxes all interchange but MUST use the correct length driveshaft. All generators/alternators interchange but OHV Dneprs use a different driving gear. Dnepr box WILL NOT fit in a Ural M66.
- Sidecar chassis and sidecar boats interchange. The rubber sidecar springs interchange (the Dnepr ones are better). You can also fit any VMZ sidecar (the company that makes the sidecar for IZH) as well as Steib, Stoye and Royale and a dozen or so East European brands.
- The Ural type 2/3 electronic ignition fits Dneprs (it was originally designed as an aftermarket kit for both bikes).
- Saddles and saddleblocks interchange but the Dnepr and Ural have different passenger saddle mounts.

- Valves on Dnepr K650 and MT-9 are interchangeable (all four valves). From MT-10 onwards a bigger inlet valve was fitted. Ural and Dnepr valves, rockers, pushrods, etc are not interchangeable.
- Dnepr/Ural clutches interchangeable
- with a little bit of filing you can fit a VW truck point go into the Dnepr's manual advance unit
